and the search could be made without great loss of time, this information has been supplemented with details obtained by an examination of the publications themselves. It is hardly to be hoped, however, that the list is either complete or entirely accurate. An appendix is therefore provided for titles omitted and corrections of errors made in previous issues of the Checklist.

The publications have been listed alphabetically according to the names of the publishing agency, the name in each case being that which appears in the publication. If available, the following additional data have been given for each item: short title; name of personal author, or editor, if any; volume and number, if a serial; date of publication; nature of print (whether letterpress or processed); number of pages; and price, if any. If the price could not be obtained, this fact is indicated by a question mark.

Orders for the publications of the General Assembly and for the Acts should be addressed to the State Library. The other publications are distributed by the publishing agencies. In general, those for which no price is indicated are free; but in most cases the number of copies is limited. The state agencies are therefore seldom able to supply copies in large quantities.

The list for this number was compiled by Wylma Wates, and the copy was prepared for lithoprinting by Mary Belle Crawford, both members of the Archives Department staff.
